This is a practical and easily accessible guide for those new to the joint environment and staff assignments. With input from serving action officers and senior leaders, here are the competencies and behaviors of highly effective and successful joint staff officers which provide a roadmap for career self development. This is the most current joint information available for managing staff activities.

This guide is designed to help action officers responsible for managing acquisition programs better understand the interrelationship between R & M performance and operational - capability. It won't turn you into an R & M engineer. This guide is designed to be used with the Command Management Guide developed by XPT and the Reliability and Maintainability Terms for Space, Space Surveillance, and Missile Warning Systems technical report published by LKY. The XPT guide is a comprehensive document that provides a single source of reference for the staff officer. It contains an overview of the acquisition process and outlines the command manager's responsibilities.

"This handbook -- the Joint Officer Handbook (JOH) -- has been designed to accomplish three important objectives: Reduce the learning curve of staff officers before and immediately upon arrival, help staff officers develop a baseline of knowledge of each core competency deemed essential to staff officer job requirements and provide a reference guide for use during the joint assignment."--Page 1.
