Rudolph Giuliani knows what it takes to lead a country, at least as far as the emotive strength in the midst of the enormous uncharted crisis of the 9-11 attack of New York City. He stood candidly, without the pretense that he was unaffected. He felt the same pain as anyone who lost people in the attacks. He lost his spiritual advisor -- a priest, as well as others. Leading New York City is ...

Secondly Rudy Giuliani himself reads the introduction, and it is a good chapter to hear him read. The reader of the subsequent chapters is Tony Robins and he is also very good. It sounds very authentic and the reader does not take away from the words written. In this book I particularly enjoyed the chapters on September 11, and the chapter on standing up to bullies. The chapter on 9/11 is a ...
