"The most ambitious and important new book is The Red Queen among Organizations, by William P. Barnett. . . . [I]t is the best strategy book of the year because of its main insights: Competition concerns relative performance, not absolute performance; a company's competitiveness is context specific, and contexts can change, giving rise to the competency trap; learning comes from competing, not isolation from competition; and differentiation is desirable as a way to secure rents, but must be ...

Through Red Queen competition, weaker competitors fail, or they learn and adapt. This in turn heightens the intensity of competition and further strengthens survivors in an ever-evolving dynamic. Written by a leading organizational theorist, The Red Queen among Organizations challenges the prevailing wisdom about competition, revealing it to be a force that can make--and break--even the most successful organization.

~~The Red Queen among Organizations — How Competitiveness ...~~

The Red Queen Among Organizations: How Competitiveness Evolves. There's a scene in Lewis Carroll's Through the Looking Glass in which the Red Queen, having just led a chase with Alice in which neither seems to have moved from the spot where they began, explains to the perplexed girl: It takes all the running you can do, to keep in the same place.

~~The Red Queen Among Organizations: How Competitiveness ...~~

The Red Queen Among Organizations represents outstanding scholarship in the organisational theory field but is sufficiently rooted in the "real world" to be of benefit to business strategists and particularly to MBA and doctoral students in the field of corporate strategy.

~~The Red Queen among Organizations : William P. Barnett ...~~

Our theory, labeled Red-Queen competition, is based on the idea that competition both de-selects less-fit organizations and stimulates organizational learning. Organizations that have survived competition, then, are more fit, and so in turn they generate stronger competition.
